

For the third time, Harold found himself falling to the ground. He quickly tried to draw a curve to catch his fall.

Good Morning!

The first time Harold fell on a curve, it turned out to be an elephant. The second time, it ended up being a lion!

Now he's stumbled upon another curve to help cushion his fall. Grab a sheet and use your imagination to draw the rest of the picture. Then use Pattern Blocks and Cuisenaire Rods to build what you've created.
